SPANISH ROYAL FAMILY LEAVES
FOR EXILE HOME

Great Britain

(BULLETIN)

Washington, Apr. 15—(AP)—The State Department, watching closely the replacement of the Spanish monarchy by a republic, today was giving thought to the question of recognition of the new regime.

There was no official indication, however, of what action the American government was likely to take. Ambassador Padilla of Spain he would resign as soon as he receives word officially that the new government is in power.

Rooms Reserved

Paris, Apr. 15—(AP)—A request for accommodations for the Queen of Spain and her children, beginning tomorrow morning, has been received by the Hotel Maurice, where King Alfonso usually stays when he is in Paris, hotel officials said today.

The manager said he was waiting for a telegram which would indicate the hour the royal guests would arrive. He had heard nothing of the movements of King Alfonso, he said.

French officials confirmed the report that the Queen was due at Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish border.

Travel Third Class

Avila, Spain, Apr. 15—(UP)—The Queen of Spain and her children travelled third class from Spain today toward the French frontier and exile.

The Queen's departure, planned to embrace the luxury of royalty, dropped to the level of her lowest subjects when a hot box developed on the salon coach in which she left El Escorial. The Hendaye Express, to which the salon coach was attached, halted outside Avila while attempts were made to repair the hot box.

The train travelled slowly to the station here, and the coach was uncoupled and the Queen and her children transferred to a third class railway carriage.

The royal party entered the third class coach hurriedly. Blinds were pulled down immediately, but in answer to continued cheering, the Queen raised a blind to say farewell.

A large crowd saw Queen Victoria, her eyes filled with tears, smile bravely for an instant. She acknowledged the ovation given her and then quickly pulled the blind down again.

The train left Avila for the French border at 4:0 p. m.

Cartagena, Spain, April 15—(UP)—Alfonso XIII, until yesterday the King of Spain, sailed into exile today with the cry, "Long live Spain!" on his lips.

The deposed monarch—perhaps the "last" of the Bourbons—boarded the fast cruiser Prince Alfonso just before dawn and was carried away from the land over which he had reigned since his birth 44 years ago.

As he departed, Alfonso made a brave gesture toward the newly-born republic of Spain.

"I preserve and follow my traditions," he said in a firm voice as he shook hands with a little group of high army and navy officials who stood beside him on the dock.

Few Saw Departure

Then the few persons who witnessed one of the most dramatic events in Spanish history saw him turn abruptly and enter the motorboat which was to carry him to the cruiser, waiting with steam up for departure, presumably for England.

"Viva Espana!" cried Alfonso as he stepped from the soil of the republic.

"Viva Espana!" was the echo from the shore.

Alfonso, wearing civilian clothes and grimly stoic in the face of collapse of his throne and establishment, arrived at Cartagena, ancient naval seat of the Mediterranean, at 4 A. M., after an all-night drive from the Capital.

Alone and without friends to cheer him, the former King had ridden for seven hours beside his chauffeur on the dash to the coast. Two other cars, carrying his cousin, the Infante of Orleans, and Admiral Jose Riquelme, last monarchist Minister of Navy, followed.

To Join Family

The deposed King left the Capital after the republican government had guaranteed the safety of the royal family, which he will join in England. Prince Juan, his third son, drove by automobile to Gibraltar to embark.

Queen Victoria, the Prince of the Asturias, and other members of the royal house slept in the palace at Madrid, but departed today for Paris, en route to London.

WOMAN, WHO ALLEGEDLY FLEECE ASHTON MAN OF LIFE SAVINGS, IS KNOWN

Officers Are Continuing
Probe Of Reported
Confidence Game

Paul Kreiss, aged 63 of Ashton, a bachelor, is said to have been "fleece" out of approximately $30,000 in three years by a woman, a former resident of Lee county, reported to be known to officers, who have been conducting an investigation into the affair. His life's earnings depleted and his health broken Kreiss remains in the seclusion of his room at the county home near Eldena. He weeps freely when telling of the operations of the woman who is allegedly responsible for his being an inmate of the county institution.

Kreiss, who is reputed to have been a frugal bachelor, met the woman in Ashton probably more than three years ago, according to his version of the affair as he told it to deputies from the Sheriff's office yesterday afternoon, who were assigned to gather information. He met her in Ashton and also in Dixon, and when she visited him she told of having a large property, which was heavily encumbered, which some day she hoped to have for her own home. Kreiss told the officers that he met the woman at a local soft drink parlor on the occasion of his visits here.

Drew Money From Bank.

When she came to Ashton to visit him, she would call at his rooming house and they would ride out of Ashton in her car. She would bring up the subject of the property, heavily encumbered, which she hoped soon to possess. According to Kreiss' story, the woman had suggested marriage to him on several occasions and had always promised him a fine home as soon as the financial obligations were lifted from the property. It was to aid in the lifting of these obligations that Kreiss willingly drew large sums of money from the bank and turned them over to his new acquaintance, the amounts ranging, according to his own statements, from sums of $25 to $1,000.

"She visited me about once a month and each time she asked for money," Kreiss is said to have told the officers. "I gave her the sums in cash with the exception of one time in Dixon where I met her at a soft drink parlor and I think that I gave her a check for $25 at that time which the owner of the place cashed. She always asked for money when she visited me and I gave her sums ranging from $25 to $1,000. I wrote her letters and begged her to return my money, but have heard nothing from her."

Other Acquaintances.

The woman had other familiar acquaintances in Ashton, according to Kreiss' story. About a month ago she visited the last time with her victim in Ashton, it was learned. Upon that occasion she took Kreiss for a ride in the country and they were together for about an hour. He pleaded with her for the return of his money and told of his condition physically, his savings being exhausted and the county home the prospect for the remainder of his life. The woman listened to his story and returned him to Ashton at an early hour in the afternoon with a promise to meet him again in the evening at 6 o'clock at a given location, where she promised to pay him back some of the money. She told him that it would be necessary for her to make a hurried trip to LaSalle, Kreiss said, and he waited patiently for some time after the hour agreed upon, but she never returned.

Destroyed Her Letters.

Letters thanking him for the sums of money with which he willingly parted, were received by the victim, but were always destroyed immediately in compliance with orders contained in each of these, he told the officers. He accompanied the woman to LaSalle on some occasions, where he registered at a hotel and remained while she went elsewhere, and they would return to Ashton the following day, it developed in this investigation.

A strange man, whom Kreiss said he had seen on one or two occasions when the woman in question was visiting him, called on the victim at the

55-YEAR-OLD WATCHMAN IS VICTORIOUS IN GUN FIGHT WITH SEVEN BANK ROBBERS

Chicago, April 15—(UP)—A 55-year-old watchman fought off seven bandits today when they raided the Baker State Bank at Cicero in an attempt to carry off $55,000 from its vault.

Fred Townletter, 28, cashier, was wounded in the left leg in the firing.

The watchman, John Haas, ran to the vault, whirled and began firing when the bandits commanded a half dozen customers and 12 employees to "stick 'em up."

The robbers opened fire on Haas with automatic pistols and shotguns. While girl clerks screamed in fear, a score of bullets was fired at Haas from all angles but in the partial protection of the steel vault, he was unhurt.

The battle ended when an alarm bell rang, sending the bandits scurrying out to the curbing, where an automobile waited with a driver at the wheel.

Haas declared that one of the bandits staggered as if wounded as he rushed out the door.

Charles J. Baker, president of the bank, said the vault contained a $35,000 payroll for the Hotpoint Electric Appliance Company, together with $20,000 of the bank's funds.

The bandits, described as 32 to 35 years old and well dressed, probably knew of the large payroll, police said.

HOUSE WETS IN CAUCUS TO PLAN
REPRISAL FIGHT

Meet At Noon To Form
Program Against
Gov. Emmerson

Springfield, Ill., April 15—(AP)—Cries of "impeach him," "subpoena him," "bring him before the house" today indicated the temper of the "liberals" of the Illinois General Assembly who gathered together this afternoon to plan a campaign against Governor Louis L. Emmerson, who on Monday vetoed the Illinois prohibition repealer bill.

A full hundred Senators and Representatives, both Democrats and Republicans crowded into the committee room where the caucus was held, and in an hour completed their plan to investigate the Governor's alleged agreement with the Anti-Saloon League, and his alleged expenditure of $4,000 "of taxpayers money" in sending out 168,000 printed copies of his veto message.

They agreed not to attempt to override his veto, adjudging it impossible either in the House or the Senate.

Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, minority leader in the House, was elected permanent chairman of the "liberal caucus" and LeRoy M. Green, Republican of Rockford, was elected secretary.

"For the first time in memory," Mr. Igoe said, "liberals are using the tactics of the Anti-Saloon League and hereby have joined hands regardless of party. Stick together and we'll bring liberty back to America."

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 15—(AP)—"Wets" of the Illinois General Assembly whose work of months was reduced to naught when Governor Louis L. Emmerson vetoed their Illinois prohibition repealer bill, went to caucus at 9:30 o'clock this morning to plan a campaign of retaliation.

The hour for the caucus was advanced three hours late last night so that "wets" could start on their program at this morning's session of the Assembly.

LeRoy M. Green, Republican of Rockford at whose suggestion the caucus was called, made the only declaration of purpose when the "wets" had gathered and then became a center of confusion regarding the time for it, adjourning the caucus until 12:30 the time originally set yesterday.

Calls Veto Insult

"Governor Emmerson's veto is a personal insult to every member of the Assembly, who voted for the O'Grady bill," Green said. "What do we do for a slap in the face?"

"Sit back," Carl Jobst, Republican of Peoria volunteered.

"That's it," Green said. "We must act—and act promptly and firmly. Governor Emmerson has made more Democrats in Illinois in the last 48 hours than the Democratic party has in the last 48 years."

Homer Tice, Republican, Greenview, chairman of the Appropriations committee this morning introduced in the House an emergency bill asking an appropriation of $57,000 for use at the state penitentiary at Joliet in repairing damage done during the recent disturbances there.

Appropriations of $307,000 for building, equipment, stock and supplies and $250,000 for protection against future damage was asked.

Devine After Small Loans

James Burns, Democrat, Kankakee, started a long debate by requesting that the Judiciary committee be discharged from further consideration of his small loan bill to reduce the maximum rate of interest on small loans from 3½ to 1 per cent a month.

Half a dozen Democrats joined Burns in the demand that the small loan bill fight be continued on the floor of the House. John Devine, southwest portion.

NINE AMERICANS
FALL VICTIMS OF SANDINO REBELS

Nicaraguan Rebels Kill
And Mutilate Many
Since Saturday

BULLETIN

New Orleans, April 15—(UP)—Officials of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Company have entered a vigorous telegraphic protest to President Hoover at the government's asserted dilatory tactics in affording protection to Americans attacked by bandits near Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, Irving Moss, Chairman of the Board of Directors, said today.

Colonel William C. DuFour, legal adviser of the company, is in Washington to present the company's complaint and requests for protection.

The protest today followed a company statement in which the government was criticized for not allowing Marines from the U. S. S. Asheville, stationed off Puerto Cabezas, to guard the town yesterday. The town was held by a handful of guardsmen who had returned from bloody fights with bandits.

The Asheville's commanding officer said at that time his orders would allow him to land Marines only when no guardsmen were in the town, and then only to protect lives.

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, Apr. 15—(AP)—Nine Americans have been killed by Nicaraguan insurgents in the vicinity of Logtown, about 70 miles from here, since last Saturday morning.

The insurgents, who attacked a lumber camp there by surprise, and have since ravaged nearby haciendas, have slain a large but undetermined number of natives, although meeting with some reverses themselves at the hands of the Nicaraguan constabulary, with American Marine officers.

The insurgents suddenly appeared at Logtown on the morning of April 11 at about 7 a. m., barely giving the commissary clerk the time to call the Wawa Junction Telephone Exchange. He shouted "help" into the mouthpiece and ran, leaving the receiver down.

The Wawa operator as a consequence was able to hear the bandits as they looted the Logtown commissary and notified Puerto Cabezas and other encampments in the vicinity.

Party Ambushed

An automobile carrying William Selser and "Pinkie" Wilson and Arthur Curtis, Americans, took a marine and four of the Guardia toward the lumber camp but stopped some distance away to await Captain Harlan Peffey and four more of the Guardia, before proceeding to Logtown.

When they were near the place the insurgents, who had prepared an ambush, opened fire from behind killing Captain Peffey and wounding a Guardia and Selser, who died later. A fight followed and after a while the insurgents withdrew. The Guardia picking up their dead and wounded and returning to the commissary reported the fight to Puerto Cabezas.

Rebels Tapped Wires

The insurgents had tapped the wires and were listening to the appeal for help so that when Lieutenant

Drought Regions
To Recover In '31

Washington, Apr. 15—(AP)—Given just a fair break, the wide sections of the country which suffered from last year's drought will get through 1931 all right.

J. C. Hoyt, expert on surface water for the Geological Survey, today said average rains during the growing season and mid-summer will be adequate, in view of the rainfall of the past six weeks, both for crops and for water supplies of communities.

In spite of the lack of winter rain and snow in most sections, Hoyt said during March and April the heavy rain fall had soaked the soil to a good depth, furnishing ample water for agricultural purposes.

CAUSE OF FATAL TUNNEL FIRE IS NOT DETERMINEDInquest Into the Death Of Eleven Men Continued One Week

Chicago, April 15—(UP)—Mining experts joined today with city, county and state officials in efforts to determine definitely the cause of a tunnel fire which killed 11 men in Chicago's most costly underground disaster and to plan safety measures so that such a tragedy can not happen again.

A coroner's inquest into the deaths of the 11 men was adjourned until April 21 to give officials time to perfect their reports. The jury was taken today into the tunnel.

Capt. James E. O'Neill, fireman, was the last victim taken from the tunnel. He had been the first to enter Monday night when the fire filled the huge intercepting sewer with gas-laden smoke and trapped two score workmen.

Besides the 11 who died inside the tunnel, there was one other whose death attributed to the disaster. He was Traffic Policeman Harry Fielder, who was killed by an ambulance speeding to a hospital with some of the rescued.

54 Were Injured

Fifty-four men were injured seriously enough to require medical attention. Scores of others, most of them firemen, suffered minor injuries. It was believed all the injured would recover.

Opening testimony at the inquest did not establish whether it was sawdust, packed about the wooden forms for the concrete walls, or the forms themselves, which had burned. It was agreed there was little, if any, actual fire inside the tunnel, but that smoke from the mysteriously blazing had filled the passageway with smoke for dense powerful light could not penetrate it.

Reports that the fire was started by a workman who dropped a candle into the sawdust were not substantiated.

STATE INCOME TAX APPROVED
IN THE SENATE

Passed After Stormy
Session: Now Goes
To The House

Springfield, Ill., April 15—(AP)—The Senate today passed the Lantz income tax bill by a vote of 30 to 17. The bill, which would make possible taxation of incomes by the state now goes to the House for consideration.

The Senate wrangled for several hours over the bill while a thousand and farm leaders from all parts of the state looked on. The bill has support of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

Senator Simon E. Lantz, Republican, Congerville, sponsor of the bill, pointed out that the bill would bring relief of approximately $30,000,000 to real estate. "This bill offers an opportunity to take a constructive step toward correction of an unfair taxing system under which more than half the population of the state pays nothing directly to support government," he said. "It is not an additional tax. It is a replacement tax, designed to defray nearly all the costs of state government and relieve property to that extent."

Roy Wood, Republican, Chicago, attacked the constitutionality of the bill. He cited the constitution which he said provided that any person or corporation must pay taxes in proportion to the value of its property. He said the constitution provides for assessment only on real and personal property. He stated the bill would not make taxation uniform. "It is time to stop passing unconstitutional bills here in the Senate," he said. "This measure should be redrafted and a referendum amendment should be placed on it."

Thomas J. Courtney, Democrat, Chicago, pleading in behalf of Cook county, said that under the bill Cook county would be paying 85 per cent of the taxes. "It may be a replacement tax in some instances, but to every man who pay rent, it will be an additional tax, he said.

Andrew Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, declared the bill should be passed and sent to the Supreme Court for testing. He said similar laws in other states have been sustained.

Brother Held For Death Of Officer?

Chicago, Apr. 15—(UP)—Charges of murder will be filed against Guy Sprague, 59, police said today, as a result of the fatal shooting of Policeman Patrick J. Gallagher.

Sprague, said to be a wealthy grain broker, who came here from Fort Wayne, Ind., about five years ago, is alleged to have shot Gallagher when the latter attempted to quiet a noisy party in the Broker's apartment in the Windsor-Wilson apartment hotel, 915 Wilson Avenue, yesterday.

Gallagher and Policeman Carl Johnson were called to the hotel on complaint of the night clerk and Sprague promised to quiet the revelry. It was renewed, however, as the policemen left. Upon their return, Sprague was alleged to have fired two shots. One struck Gallagher in the abdomen and the other went wild.

Wilbur Massie, 36, and John W. Eldner, 41, Benton Harbor, Mich., members of the party, also were held. Two women, Bernice Collins, 35, former school teacher at Berlin, Wis., and Julia Pierce, 22, Christianburg, Va., were ordered to report for the inquest.

Sprague will be defended by Attorney Barratt O'Hara.

ALLEGED "LOVE-MARKETS" SCENE
OF RAIDS TODAYGold Coast Apartments Of
Two Chicago Women
Are Visited

Chicago, April 15—(UP)—Two women, one styling herself a "Baroness," were taken from their gold coast apartments today, in raids by the State's Attorney's office, and questioned regarding charges they provided girl companions for wealthy men at $50 each.

Card-indexes containing names of girls between the ages of 15 and 20 were seized in the apartments.

The women, "Baroness Catherine Kuhlwind, 50, and Mrs. Jane Stanton, 43, were quoted as each accusing the other of supplying the inspiration for their separate but similar enterprises.

Mrs. Kuhlwind's records contained the names of more than 35 girls, their ages, color of hair, and remarks regarding attractiveness.

Mrs. Stanton's card index was smaller, but more carefully kept, according to authorities.

Three operatives of the State's Attorney's office, assigned out of the "racket" bureau, furnished the information upon which the arrests were made.

One of them, gray of hair and distinguished in appearance, was said to have instructed himself into Mrs. Kuhlwind's confidence.

The raids were made after this agent had struck a bargain with Mrs. Kuhlwind to introduce two of the girls in her lists to "a pair of wealthy oil men, from Tulsa, Okla."

The "oil men" were other State's Attorney's representatives. Their meeting with the "Baroness" resulted in her arrest.

In Mrs. Kuhlwind's apartment, the investigators found the files with the girls' names tabulated alphabetically. They found also the name of Mrs. Stanton.

The arrest of Mrs. Stanton followed. The two apartments were only a few blocks apart, on the north side "gold coast," along Lake Michigan.

The "Baroness" said she was born in Galesburg, Ill., and acquired her title by marriage to a German nobleman she divorced in Chicago in 1910.

The Almanac De Gotha does not list a "Baroness Kuhlwind," nor does the German Consulate here know of such a person.

Mrs. Kuhlwind explained the splendor of her apartment, which was complete even to a Negro maid, by an "inheritance" of $100,000 she said was left by a fiancé.

The cars reached Cartagena at 4 A. M. and whirled through the streets to the dockyards, where the Captain General, a group of naval officers and a crowd of about 300 persons awaited.

As the automobiles arrived there was a stir among the crowd outside the gates.

"Long live the King!" someone shouted.

"Long live the Republic!" replied a dozen others. Otherwise the crowd was tranquil, apparently conscious that they were witnessing one of Spain's greatest historical events—the departure of the "last" of the Bourbons who had ruled the nation, with one brief republican interlude, since Philip V ascended the throne in 1700.

Alfonso boarded the warship and it raised anchor at 4:45 A. M., carrying the latest of Europe's deposed monarchs away from the shores of the newest republic and into exile.

Born On May, 1886
Madrid, April 15 (UP)—Don Alfonso XIII, who resigned from the throne of Spain yesterday, was born on May 17, 1886, and was crowned on his 16th birthday.

Though still one of the younger kings of Europe, he has been a sovereign for more years than any of his elder colleagues.

He was often, in the closing years of his reign, beset by ill health and his heart has given him so much trouble that his physician some time ago ordered him to cease playing polo.

Physically he is an attractive man tall and wiry. He walks with a springy step; his skin is olive, his eyes brown, and he has a large bony nose and lantern jaw—facial characteristics of the Hapsburgs—and the full mouth of the Bourbons.

In dress he is inclined to eccentricity, although when wearing his kingly uniforms he has always given the impression of the romantic monarchs of long ago.

Target of Assassins
He was the frequent target of assassins. On the day of his accession, plotters started after him with enough dynamite to blow up half of Madrid, but the conspiracy was nipped.

When Alfonso married the British Princess Ena, the royal carriage was bombed.

The Spanish people liked him for his keen interest in sports. He was an accomplished polo player until he had to give it up. He likes to snort pigeons, to sail, to play tennis.

Just what action would be taken as the next step to secure the return of the unfortunate Ashton bachelor's funds, will probably be decided late today, following the outcome of further investigations which were under way.

elections, rang through Madrid as Alfonso's car sped through the night toward Cartagena.

His departure on the 25-mile automobile drive was secret and the machines sped along through towns which were celebrating the new republic without attracting attention until they reached Murcia, where the United Press correspondent reported them at 3:10 A. M.

Crowds Shouted
The inhabitants of Murcia swarmed into the streets and shouted and sang when the deposed King's automobile was sighted.

A LITTLE PRAYER FOR THE MAN IN THE AIR

NEVER hear
The growing diapason of a plane
Up there,
The deep reverberant humming
of a plant
Up there,
But up to God, I wing a little prayer
Begging his care
For him who braves the dangers of the air

"God keep you, Bird-man, in your plane.
Up there!
Your wings upbear, your heart sus-tain!
Give you good flight and oversight
And bring you safe to earth again!"
I, too, have hostages with fortune
up above,
And what may come to you may
come to mine,
So, once again—"God speed you as you rove!
Both you and mine to His care I consign."

—John Oxenham

Loyal Men's Class Elected Officers Last Evening

New officers elected last evening for the Loyal Men's Bible Class of the Christian Bible School were:
President, Silas Parks; Vice-president, William Lindsey; Secretary, Treasurer, Maurice Ortiguesen; teacher, Jas. G. Leach.

The class meeting was at the home of P. E. Self and C. C. Emmert, on Highland, ave. and was well attended. B. M. Rolph and A. S. Derr
"postulated" on their winter vacations in Florida. Mr. Rolph's three previous winters in Southern California left him disposed to champion the advantages of the western climate, fruit, etc.; while A. S. Derr held out for the Land of Flowers.
He passed around samples of oranges fresh from the farm of A. J. Fellows of Arcadia, and also a "baby lemon," only eighteen inches in circumfer-ence, and weighing 40 ounces. The Cardinals, in his opinion, look the best of the half-dozen teams he watched in the spring training;
athletics not quite so impressive
this year.

On initiative of Enoch Self, the class sent a note of appreciation to Gov. Louis Emmerson, for his action in vetoing the State's "Prohibition Nullifier." The next session will be with J. P. Kindig, May 11th. Mrs.
Emmert and mother served delicious and "magnanimous" refreshments, assisted by Miss Ruth Leach.

Miss Clark's Birth- day Was Celebrated

A delightful surprise birthday party was planned by Miss Yvonne Henry to celebrate Miss Mary Clark's eighteenth birthday. Sixteen young people gathered at the home of the latter for a very happy evening. Miss Ovella Potts and Robert Tate won the high honors at bunco while Miss Mary Clark and Edward Gerdes received the consolation prizes. The guests departed at a late hour leaving many beautiful gifts for their hostess, and wishing her many years of happiness.

Party Monday Hon- ored Mrs. McCarthy

Miss Esther Barton delightfully entertained a group of friends Monday evening for Mrs. E. P. McCarthy of Cleveland, O., formerly Miss Emily
Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
John B. Clark of this city. Miss Marian Ahrens was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge and Mrs.
Margaret Richards the consolation favor. Mrs. McCarthy was presented a guest favor. A tempting luncheon was served, the decorations being spring flowers.

ST. AGNES GUILD TO MEET FRIDAY—

St. Agnes Guild of St. Luke's church will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Theo. Fuller, 516 E. Second street, with Mrs. W. S. Marloth as assisting hostess.

MENU for the FAMILY

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

FOR A RAINY DAY
Escalloped Meat
Baked Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Beets
Bread
Apricot Conserve
Cabbage Salad
Fruit Sauce

Escalloped Meat

4 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
2 cups diced, cooked meat
2 tablespoons chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers

3 tablespoons chopped parsley
3 cup crumbs
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Melt the 4 tablespoons of butter and add the flour, salt and paprika.
Add the milk and cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add the meat and seasonings. Pour into shallow, buttered baking dish. Cover with the crumbs which have been mixed with the melted butter. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven.

Apricot Conserve

3 cups dried apricots
1 cup diced pineapple
4 cups water
1 cup orange juice
4 tablespoons lemon juice
4 cups sugar
Wash apricots, add water and soak
3 hours. Add pineapple and fruit juices, and when well mixed add the sugar. Cook slowly and stir frequently until the conserve thickens.
It will require about one hour to cook. Pour into sterilized glasses.
Cool and seal.

Steamed Pedding

2 cups bread crumbs
1 cup sour milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup nuts
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
4 tablespoons fat, melted
Mix all ingredients. Half fill greased pudding molds and steam for 1 1/2 hours. Fruit Sauce

1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons butter
Blend the sugar, flour and salt.
Add the fruit juices and water.
Cook slowly and stir constantly until sauce becomes creamy. Add butter. Mix and serve warm or cold.

St. Paul's Missionary Society Meeting

The Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church had their regular meeting last Thursday.

The meeting was opened by all singing "Rescue the Perishing." Mrs.
L. W. Walter followed with prayer.
Mrs. John Winters had charge of the devotion, "Christ the Healer."
This was followed by lesson study:
"The Doctor in India" conducted by Mrs. Chas. Hank and Mrs. Richard Pomeroy. Plans were made to attend the meeting in the Trinity church at Milledgeville April 22. A short business session followed. "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning" and "Jesus Calls Us" followed by the usual prayer. The hostesses, Mesdames Mary Hank, John Winters and Richard Pomeroy served delicious refreshments.

Living Models
Develop Styles
For Designers

By MARY KNIGHT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Paris—(UP)—With a stifled gasp
as the door marked "No Admittance" opened, we saw 20 models representing almost as many different types, standing in advanced stages of undress about the room.

The great designer has a bolt of material in his arms. He walks past each model holding the cloth against her to see how well it blends with her skin, her hair, her personality.
When he has found the right composition for all he stops and his face lights up as he says, "Ah! This for you!" Each model has been chosen with a definite type of dress in mind—sport, pajama, street wear and evening gown. There will be a

"college type" for the young girl as well as the "debutante."

When the designer has decided on the type of gown, has selected his model and material, the others are dismissed and the creative process begins. Aside from a fine silk rubber girdle, the model is not encumbered with anything and the material is draped next to the body itself.
The designer backs away from his work at intervals just as a painter gets the full effect of his creation.
If he is very eccentric, when the model is finished and the skirt does

Charming Royal Siam- ese Couple Will Ar- rive Here Friday

By VINCENT MAHONEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

San Francisco, April 14—(UP)—

America's first glimpse of the King and Queen of Siam probably will bring a shock to the preconceived notions of many Dorothy Brandon, prominent newspaper woman, said here today before she left for Vancouver, B. C., to aid in reporting the arrival of the King and Queen.

"So extravagantly 'movie-ized' are most Americans' impressions of orient royalty," Mrs. Brandon said,
"that there probably will be many spectators who will be disappointed not to see a herd of white elephants come down the Empress of Japan's gangway, with turbaned figures sitting in unbending dignity on their backs in gold and ivory howdahs.

What the crowds at the pier probably will see instead is a slender, handsome man in morning clothes or tweeds and a strikingly pretty young woman garbed in the height of conservative European-American traveling clothes.

"The fact is, there is probably no high personage in Asia who, temper-mentally, comes nearer the popular American idea of a wealthy young sportsman than King Prajadhipok."

"And apart from superficial differences in appearance, Queen Ran-mal Barm might be mistaken from her conversation for any charming American debutante who has had the advantage of a rather unusual education. The Queen speaks excellent English, Danish, German and Spanish. She is an ardent golfer, and court gossip at Bangkok was that she would "spot" the King six strokes and still turn in a lower score.

"The Queen lived in France for six years and came away with an abiding taste for French fashions.
She is small, has a softly rounded face and slightly narrowed eyes. She wears her luxuriant black hair long.
She has one of the most charming smiles I have ever seen."

"A far cry from the swaying how-dah of his ancestors, the King is a speedboat enthusiast. To the unending concern of his ministers he may be seen on many afternoons at the wheel of his high-powered boat.
The sporting side, however, is his smallest. The King is probably Siam's most modern-minded monarch. He has furthered many engineering improvements, most recent of which was the large reinforced concrete bridge, supported on caissons, across the Menan Choa Phya river at Bangkok. I have seen the King in golf knicker striding from caisson to caisson while the house proceded in the making of the same way, he personally saw to progress of the work while thousands of acres of rice land were placed under scientific irrigation.

"Whatever most attracts the Queen, depend upon it, she will be an interested spectator at a showing of fall fashions in New York."

During her two years in Siam, Mrs.
Brandon edited the Daily Mail royalty-owned Bangkok daily.

The King and Queen are due to arrive Friday.

Better Breakfasts

How often do you have fish for breakfast? Why not have it often? Fish is so easy now to get in cans, and cod fish balls, flakes and cakes and kippered
herring are all time-honored breakfast dishes. But here is another dish, just tested by a dietitian, which is delicious and easy to make, and gives you
"better breakfast" a different taste. But, first, here's the whole menu so that you will know what kind of a breakfast to serve it with:

Sliced Bananas
Ready to Eat Cereal With Top
Milk or Cream
Breakfast Mackerel
Toasted Holland Rusks
Hot Beverage

You know how to prepare all these things, except Breakfast

Mackerel, and here's the recipe
for that:

Remove the contents of a 14-ounce can of fresh mackerel in large pieces and lay in a shallow pan. Dust with paprika and breakfast dishes. Bake over with strips of bacon. Bake in a hot oven until the bacon is sealed away from the mackerel.
Serve with wedges of lemon. This recipe will serve four people.

For Good Coffee

Have good coffee for your hot beverage with this breakfast, and in order to be sure that it is good and fresh buy it in vacuum packed tins. Coffee packed since it way can't deteriorate from oxygen, and more and more of the best coffee are packed in this manner, so you can have your choice of almost all the good brands.

and evening gown. There will be a
"college type" for the young girl as
well as the "debutante."

When the designer has decided on
the type of gown, has selected his
model and material, the others are
dismissed and the creative process

THE GREATEST AUTHORS.

One of the best ways to start a fine argument is to make up a short list of the best American novels. No matter what books you select, there will always be plenty of people to disagree with you; and since there is no way of proving or disproving your correctness the argument can go on and on as long as anybody feels like arguing.

John Galsworthy, who is surely one of the greatest living novelists, recently named what he considers the four greatest American novels. He selected "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain; "The Scarlet Letter," by Hawthorne, and "McTeague," by Frank Norris.

Now we can sit back and wait for the various critics to fall upon him and tell him where he is in error. In the meantime, Mr. Galsworthy's list is interesting on its own account.

Probably the most notable thing about it is that it overlooks the great writers of the present day. Hawthorne belongs far back in an earlier, almost forgotten, generation. The present generation usually lists him with the great unread. Mark Twain, likewise, although far from being ignored today, represents a vanished era. Only Norris comes close to the present, and even he concerned himself with the San Francisco of the 'nineties.

But where are the writers of today—those writers whom earnest critics exalt mightily, as if they and only they, among all Americans, had been permitted to see the true inwardness of things? Where are the great exponents of frankness, the sober weighers of tragedy, the acidulous critics of American hypocrisy and immaturity?

Where, to be specific, are Messrs. Lewis, Dreiser and Cabell? Mr. Galsworthy seems to have ignored them. Above "Babbitt" and "The Genius" and "Jurgin" he places a simple tale of colonial New England, two romances of the pre-war Mississippi and a story of Polk street in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Naturally, there is nothing final about Mr. Galsworthy's selections. There are plenty of qualified judges who are convinced that Mr. Dreiser and Mr. Lewis have more to say to us than had Mark Twain and Hawthorne. But the English novelist's list at least serves to remind us that American literature was not born after the World War.

There were able writers in the land before most of the present-day reading public were born; and it is just possible that some writers of the present generation have been praised a trifle more generously than they deserve.

"AN EYE FOR AN EYE."

The law of the savage is "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." It is the spirit of revenge carried to the point of reprisal.

It survives in America in some of our laws. In many states, he who kills his fellow man must pay with his life if convicted of willful murder. This is nothing more than a primal law translated into modern usage. Perhaps it is the best method of punishing murderers.

The state of Michigan just said: "No, it is not!" The people voted down a proposition to re-establish capital punishment.

This has brought to the front again the old question of whether the death penalty prevents murders. Statistics on the matter are controversial. The significant fact is this: England and other countries have proved a high percentage of convictions is a deterrent. Their few murders, compared with the number in the United States proves it.

Figures show that the number of murderers who actually pay the supreme penalty in this country each year is comparatively small. In fact the percentage of convictions for all classes of murder is much less than in England, for example.

To worry about capital punishment, then, at this time, would seem to be evading the issue. Before taking up the problem of "to kill or not to kill" in reprisal, as the savages did, it would be well to consider the more important problem of law enforcement and the certainty of some kind of punishment.

For we know realization by the slayer that he will probably be convicted, even though conviction may mean imprisonment, strikes fear into his heart. That will prevent murders. That is the important result.

The boat the Tynmites were in soon drifted near an awful din. "My goodness," shouted Carpy, "what is making all that noise? Perhaps it's music, but I think it's more like just plink, plink, plink." The Travel Man said, "We'll find out, if you'll be patient, boys."

"Look yonder to that little place and you will see a smiling face peeping through a window. Let's climb up and say hello." And so they reached the spot with ease and then a friendly Siamese cried, "Come right in. We'll play for you and put on quite a show."

The Tynmites did and soon they found out what had made the funny sound. A group of natives sat around and played on odd shaped things. The music really wasn't bad and all the Tynmites were glad that they had stopped to watch the men all plunking on the strings.

When they had had their fill, one said, "A good plan popped into my head. Let's head right on to Bangkok, where I'm sure there's heaps in store. How can we go, by railroad train or shall we take a monstrous plane? Of course we cannot go in both." This made the Tynmites

"You're right," replied the Travel Man. "So we will do the best we can. I have our railroad tickets so a train ride it will be." They reached the town of Bangkok where queer things just seemed to fill the air. The scenery was wonderful, as far as they could see.

To real tall trees the Travel Man called their attention. Up they ran. "What are they?" shouted Clowdy, "and why are they trimmed so very queer?" The Travel Man replied, "Well, son, all of that fancy trimming's done to make the trees look prettier to folks who visit here."

CAPTURE OF LENS

On April 15, 1917, at between four and five in the morning, the first British troops entered Lens, their objective.

The offensive began April 9 along a front of 45 miles, having for its immediate objective Lens at one end and St. Quentin at the other. This is the struggle which has become known as the Battle of Arras, although at the end of seven days fighting, the scene shifted considerably to the east of the city which has given its name to the battle.

The occupation of Lens marked the recovery for France of the country's most valuable coal fields. At the other end of the 45 miles the British had practically won their way into the suburbs of St. Quentin, with the Germans making a stubborn last stand in the city itself.

Daily Health Talk

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Tuberculosis of the larynx has been considered, until recent years, one of the most dangerous forms of the disease, leading usually to fatality.

All sorts of remedies have been tried in an endeavor to control the condition, but without exceedingly good results. As far back as 1898, attempts were made to treat tuberculosis of the larynx with sunlight, but due to lack of proper apparatus the results were not as good as they might have been.

With the discovery of the apparatus which yielded ultraviolet rays in the form of the carbon arc and the quartz mercury vapor lamps, it became possible to apply concentrated sun's rays directly to the larynx. In order to get the rays directly to the laryngeal cords, various systems of mirrors have been devised and also quartz stems along which the ultraviolet rays pass.

It has been found that people who are very frail, those with advanced tuberculosis of the lung, and those who have very severe lesions in the throat are treated better by means of the mirror reflection than by other methods.

A steel mirror will reflect about 44 per cent of the valuable rays into the larynx, according to Dr. Jos. W. Miller, whereas ordinary glass mirrors absorb these rays and reflect only about 9 per cent. It has been found that practically all of the patients treated by direct sunlight to the cords tend to heal. Dr. Miller reports 59 out of 72 patients who showed complete healing of the tuberculosis lesions in the larynx. The symptoms improved in the other patients even though the healing was partial.

In many of these cases, because it was impossible for the patient to stay in a sanatorium, it became necessary for the patient to treat himself. The apparatus has now been developed so that the patient can actually see his larynx and treat himself by means of the reflecting mirrors.

FORD THEATER TO BECOME NEW LINCOLN SHRINE

Building To Be Made A Permanent Museum
By Government

Washington, April 15 (UP)—On the night of April 14, 1865, 66 years ago, Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth, an actor, while he and Mrs. Lincoln sat in a box in Ford's Theater witnessing the performance of Laura Keane in "Our American Cousin."

Today the United States government plans to make of the building a permanent memorial. It still stands across the street from the house in which Lincoln died, and is used as a government storehouse. A simple bronze plate, bearing the inscription, "Abraham Lincoln was assassinated in this building, April 14, 1865," is its only mark of identification.

Excitement ran high on every street in the Capital on that memorable night. Booth and his companion had planned to kill the President, the Vice-President and the Secretary of State.

The President and Mrs. Lincoln entered the theater and occupied a box at the left of the stage. Booth waited in a saloon which stood next to the theater. At 10:30 he entered the box, and without a moment's warning he shot the President in the back of the head and leaped to the stage, fracturing his leg.

An astonished audience sat paralyzed. Booth ran out the rear door and sped away on horseback.

William Peterson, lived across the street in a small, modest home. He and his family heard shouts from crowds in the street and saw two men bearing the body of a man on a shutter. He did not know the man, but offered his home. Lincoln was placed in a four-poster bed in a tiny room on the first floor. He never regained consciousness.

This house has been turned into a Lincoln museum. The Oldroyd collection of more than 3,000 articles is included in the mementoes on exhibition.

An old Negro receives visitors and recounts over and over the story of the assassination. On the walls is the same paper that was used in that day.

The house is marked by two American flags placed in front on the street, two on the porch, and a large one flying from the second story window. On the front of the house is the sign, "The House in Which Lincoln Died."

Prince and Princess Takamatsu, members of the Japanese royal family now visiting the United States, will inspect the museum when they come here.

E. Page, publisher of the Columbus (Ga.) Ledger-Enquirer says, "I have often wondered if some publishers really ever did stop to think. My reason for asking this question is what is going to happen to the newspaper industry if the newspapers continue to give away advertising to the radio manufacturers?"

"There have been any number of large newspaper advertisers who have in the past two years practically discarded newspaper advertising for radio and have no way of telling just how many people are listening in on their programs. Of course, they are bound to receive some results from the radio advertising, but they do not give newspapers credit for the accumulative power of advertising that was done prior to going into radios and yet the radio gets credit for the good will and sales that have been built up by newspapers on these various products."

"Newspaper publishers are gradually beginning to realize that it was newspapers that made radio possible by giving unlimited publicity and carrying programs without any charge and that radio has become their biggest competitor."

"There is no more reason why publishers should carry these programs without being paid for than carrying radio advertising without being paid for. I am glad to know that a great number of publishers have awakened to the fact that unless they take steps to correct this situation it will cost them millions of dollars a year. A number of publishers have refused to carry radio programs unless broadcasting stations or advertisers pay for the programs."

"This is a subject that one could dwell on indefinitely, but it is now time for all publishers to stop and think of the millions of dollars that they are losing by giving free publicity to radio programs."

Former Milan, Ill. Man Faces Charge

Omaha, April 14 (AP)—Selection of a jury to try Frank Von Ach, formerly of Milan, Ill., who is charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Betty Burns, 38, estranged wife of a former Des Moines, Iowa, broker, was begun in district court today.

Mrs. Burns, who lived here with Von Ach, a used car dealer, for several years, was found dead in her bed here early on the morning of February 28. The state charges she died as the result of a beating administered by Von Ach February 17.

BODY OF MOUNT MORRIS MAN IS ENTOMBED HERE

Harvey J. Kable Is Laid To Rest In Oakwood Mausoleum

The body of Harvey J. Kable, well known Mt. Morris citizen who died Monday noon, were brought to Dixon this afternoon, following funeral services at the Trinity Lutheran church in that city, and were placed in the mausoleum at Oakwood cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. H. Hightower, pastor of the Trinity church, assisted by C. Ernest Davis, president of Mt. Morris college, and a quartet from the Carthage College choir, sang.

Mr. Kable had been gravely ill for weeks and only recently was brought home from a Chicago hospital where he had sought treatment for an ailment which baffled the skill of noted surgeons.

His death brings to a close a notable career and separates twin brothers who for a generation toiled in unison in the development of one of the largest publishing houses in the midwest.

Fascinating Romance of Business. The story of the success of the Kable twins, Harvey J. and Harry G. is a fascinating romance of enterprise and business genius.

It was back in 1898, two years after their graduation from the local high school, that they borrowed $400 and courageously purchased the Mt. Morris Index, a struggling weekly newspaper of that time and with the ancient cylinder press and one job press embarked upon a venture that was to enjoy phenomenal success.

They pioneered the idea of editing and printing the house organs of various fraternal societies and developed it to the point where in 1930 the business exceeded $3,000,000.

Native of Lanark. Harvey J. Kable was born at Lanark, Ill., July 15, 1880, a son of John A., and Elizabeth Speicher Kable, coming to Mt. Morris as a child.

He was educated in the public schools of Mt. Morris, graduating from the high school in 1896 and from Mt. Morris college in 1898, and almost immediately entering the printing business when he and his twin brother, Harry G., bought out the defunct village paper, the Index, and laid the foundation for the famous Kable plant.

Three times the business outgrew its quarters and today more than 300 magazines are published there each month.

He was a member of the Modern Woodmen, Mystic Workers, American Insurance union, North American Union, Columbian Circle, Independent Order of Foresters, Kiwanis club and Rock River Country club.

Took Pride in Band. His particular pride was the Kable Bros. 129th Infantry band which has become widely famous. Himself a musician of considerable ability Mr. Kable was a member of the first Mt. Morris band, later organizing the Kable band.

Early in life he became a member of the Trinity Lutheran church of which he was a faithful member throughout his life time. He was for more than 30 years a member of the Lutheran choir.

On May 7, 1903, he was united in marriage to Pearl Hershey, also of Mt. Morris. She, with three children, Forrest, who is assistant manager of the Chicago office of the Kable company; Justin, a student at Carthage college and Virginia, a local high school student, survive.

He is survived also by his twin brother, Harry G., and four sisters, Mrs. Minnie Niman, Mrs. Lulu Longman, Mrs. Hazel Zimmerman and Miss Ruth Kable, all of Mt. Morris. There is also one granddaughter.

Writer and Musician. Mr. Kable was of a literary turn of mind. He was widely read and devoted considerable time to writing, still maintaining throughout his life an active interest in music and retaining an active place in the Mt. Morris band and the Lutheran church choir.

He was devoted to his family and to his business and the welfare of his community.

Carthage College Choir Is Coming

The "a cappella" choir of Carthage College is enroute on their annual spring tour and will be in this city tomorrow to give a concert at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 8:00 o'clock P. M.

This choir has brought a great amount of fame to the name of Carthage College. The choir is now considered one of the leading choirs of its kind in the country. Critics everywhere hail it as a beginner in a renaissance of choral music. There is a great opportunity being well fulfilled. Such comments as: "One of the most beautiful examples of song in my experience" and "Musically, the choir is one of the best in the country; the intonation, the balance of parts, selection of numbers and the ability to stay in pitch without accompaniment—all difficult to obtain—has been attained by this choir" are heard everywhere that this choir sings. There will be no admission charge.

15 CHILDREN WON HIM PRIZE. Memphis (UP)—When a prize was offered for the man who brought the most children to the "Pore Man's Ball" sponsored by the American Legion here, Tow Dwyer came with his 15 sons and daughters. He has four children dead.

Intimate Glimpses of Longworth Who Wed President's Daughter in White House

Intimate glimpses into the life of the late Nicholas Longworth, who as a young Ohio congressman married President Roosevelt's daughter and rose to become speaker of the House, are shown above. At the left below is the Longworth's wedding picture, taken just after the ceremony in the White House in 1906 and showing, left to right: Young "Nick" Longworth, "Princess Alice" Roosevelt and President Roosevelt, the bride's famous father. Speaker Longworth is shown, upper right, with his charming little daughter, Paulina, who is also shown in a closeup at the lower right. Upper left is a recent picture of Mrs. Longworth.

Noted Preacher Will Speak Here On Dry Question

who will appear in Dixon, Wednesday afternoon, April 22, as a special speaker on the Prohibition question. His experience as a professional baseball player from 1883 to 1890, makes him free and well versed in the language of the baseball diamond, and his subject for the Dixon address will be:

"Booze!—Foul!—and Out!" Mr. Sunday has always been a staunch prohibitionist, and fought the liquor traffic throughout his entire evangelistic career. He has helped in numerous campaigns to dry up counties, cities and states; and the wets blame him for creating much of the sentiment that eventually crystallized in the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The Dixon date came about through an unavoidable cancellation in Milwaukee, and Mr. Sunday will speak here, between evening appointments in Rock Island and Rockford. His tour is a part of a series of Dry Rallies being held in the Central, Eastern and Southern States, wherein the other speakers are Ben Spence of Toronto, Can., Harris Arnor of Atlanta, Ga., W. C. T. U. Official, and Francis Scott McBride of Washington, D. C. General Supt. of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Mr. Sunday is accompanied by Col. Frank B. Ebert of California, who received the title of Major during the World War, and since been made Lieutenant Colonel. "Billy" has the same old vim, vigor and vitality of the days of his earlier revival work, with good voice and his inimitable platform emphasis and personality. Hundreds in Dixon who recall his wonderful revival here, over twenty years ago will rejoice to see and hear him.

again. Here are a few of his "Big Berthas" in the direction of the saloon, whose return he insists is inevitable if Prohibition is revoked.

"I defy any man to show me that the saloon has ever lessened the burden of taxation."

"Booze is the parent of crime and the mother of sin."

"The booze question is the one question before the American people."

"If you want consort with the blackleg and the thief and the drunkard and the prostitute, go to the saloon."

"You'll always find the saloon in alliance with corrupt politics. It fights every movement for good government, and for the uplifting of men."

"The saloon needs two million boys a year to take the place of the drunkards who die off or are sent to the penitentiary."

"The saloon cocks the highwayman's pistol. It puts the rope in the hands of the mob. It is the anarchist of the world. Its dirty red flag is dyed in the blood of women and children."

Walgreen Stores To Celebrate Four Days With Big Sale

The Walgreen company, second largest drug chain in the country, announces that it will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization this month with a four day sale. The sale is to run simultaneously in the firm's 446 stores throughout the nation. It will be backed by a $75,000 advertising campaign.

The Walgreen company sales for March showed an increase over March, 1930, and were the third largest in the history of the company, being exceeded only by sales in December, 1929, and December, 1930.

The first store in the system was opened by C. R. Walgreen in 1906 in Chicago, and the company now has stores in more than 100 cities located from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada. In 1910 the volume of business done by the company totaled $750,000. In 1920 it was $1,500,000. In 1925 it was $9,300,000 and in 1930 it had risen to $51,500,000.

The Dixon date came about through an unavoidable cancellation in Milwaukee, and Mr. Sunday will speak here, between evening appointments in Rock Island and Rockford. ## Necklaces Aren't Included in Jewelry Ensembles for Spring Evenings

You do not need a necklace, according to some of the latest ensembles of precious jewels. Nor should your various pieces of jewelry match exactly in design or gems.

One of the most stunning jewelry ensembles of the spring, created by Edwin H. Tompkins, New York, to be worn with an evening gown of regal simplicity the better to set it off, dispenses with the necklace and uses diamonds, emeralds and sapphires for its three color loveliness.

There are long, graceful earrings of diamonds, a handsome brooch of emeralds and diamonds, two of the most stunning diamond bracelets, each of a different and unique pattern, and a ring set with a single gorgeous saapphire.

tree
My dear old home, now I'd love to see
And the girls and boys who played with me.
A vision still lingers in my mind
Of all the joy I left behind.
Of the Dixon High School on the old
North Side
Of the pond where we used to skate
and slide.
That wilderness and prairie
Was what I called my home
The dearest place of all the earth,
That I shall ever roam.
My only wish in life will be,
To take me back that I may see
The city I may proud of be
For God has been her guide.
It's Dixon, city, of my pride.

ASHTON NEWS

ASHTON—Prof. J. A. Torrens accompanied one of his classes on a tour through the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. power plant at Dixon.

TARIFF BOOST ASKED ON EGGS BY WEST COAST

California Producers Menaced By Chinese Product, Experts Say

San Francisco, April 15 (UP)—President Hoover and the Federal Tariff Commission have been asked by John E. Pickett, agricultural economist, to increase the duty on eggs imported from China to prevent another $200,000,000 loss to the American egg industry.

This sum represented the loss in income to American poultry men last year due to a 27 per cent slump in prices. Pickett, who is editor of the Pacific Rural Press, told the commission.

"At a time when the egg price cycle should have tilted upward and agricultural economists were predicting that it would, a flood of cheap, processed Chinese eggs came into the country," Pickett said in an open letter. "These Chinese eggs were just about equivalent to the entire surplus of storage eggs in the country, and exerted a powerful price depressing influence."

"This has probably cost the hen owners of the nation more in the last 18 months than it cost to build the Panama Canal."

Another menace seen in the Chinese imports was the statement of Dr. Walter F. Holst of the University of California to the state legislature, that the imports were equivalent to 60,000,000 dozen fresh American eggs and that they displaced 250,000 tons of American feed.

With silver at its present low level, Pickett estimated the sale price of eggs in China at three cents a dozen. He urged a 50 per cent increase in the tariff, from 18 cents to 27 cents a pound.

The tariff commission will conduct a hearing in Washington tomorrow.

Truce Is Reached In Iowa Warfare

Tipton, Ia., Apr. 15—(AP)—Application of the compulsory bovine tuberculosis test law went forward today in Cedar county, following the concurrence of 500 of the objectors at a mass meeting.

The agreement, however, was a conditional one wherein the farmers demanded that Gov. Dan Turner will use every effort to bring about a vote on a bill now pending in the legislature to repeal the present test law, and the testing of Cedar county cattle proceed only with accredited veterinarians of the farmers' own choosing.

The farmers maintain that the present law is unreliable, that it does not protect public health, that it will not eradicate bovine tuberculosis, and that it permits unfair condemnation and confiscatory of property.

Baltimore, Md.—Jim McMillen, 215, Chicago, threw Dick Davis, 220, California, 52-35; Kola Kwariani threw Jim McClintock, 10-40.

Spokane, Wash.—Bob Kruse, 204, Portland, Ore., threw Howard Cantonwine, 225, Des Moines, Ia., (two out of three).

SPORT BRIEFS

Champaign, Ill., Apr. 15—(AP)—Lee Sentman, holder of world indoor records in the high hurdles, has been awarded the annual university of Illinois Big Ten medal for proficiency in scholarship and athletics.

Chicago, Apr. 15—(AP)—Six outstanding lightweights have been added to the Tony Canzonero-Jack (Kid) Berg championship fight card at the Chicago Stadium April 24.

Matchmaker Nate Lewis has matched Tony Herrera, El Paso, Tex., and Steve Halakko of Buffalo, N. Y.; Ralph Lenny, Jersey City, and Lud Abella of Spain; and Roger Bernard of Detroit and Harry Dubinsky, Chicago youngster, for eight rounds on the supporting card.

Chicago, Apr. 15—(AP)—The memory of Cub baseball fans apparently is not nearly as large as their love of the game.

When Rogers Hornsby replaced Joe McCarthy in the first game of the final series of the 1930 season, there were many boos, and there was much said about not going to watch the Cubs play this season.

Perhaps some of them kept their word, but they were not missed yesterday. The Cubs opened the season with 45,000 customers in the stands.

South Bend, Ind., Apr. 15—(AP)—A formal and official announcement that the world heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling will be held in Cleveland this summer, was scheduled for today.

Schmeling will appear in an exhibition in South Bend tonight, and was to be present with his manager, Joe Jacobs, members of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York and Ohio, and representatives of Stribling, to officially open the ballyhoo for the battle.

Kan., club course ten years ago may cost him $7500.

Earl Smith, 22, a former caddy, who said the ball struck him in the right eye, was awarded that judgment by a Circuit Court jury here yesterday. Smith, who alleged the injury resulted in permanent blindness in the eye, said he waited ten years to file the action so he could sue in his own name.

Los Angeles, Apr. 15—(AP)—Bobby Jones, world golf champion, and Leo Diegel, twice holder of the United States professional championship and four times Canadian open champion, seek revenge for defeat they received April 5 at Agua Caliente at the hands of George Von Elm and Mortie Dutra.

A charity match will be played at the Wilshire Country Club here April 26. Proceeds will be divided among the Bobby Jones Charity Trust Fund of Atlanta, Ga., Los Angeles charities and the motion picture relief fund.

Von Elm, former national amateur champion, and Dutra, a promising young California professional, beat Jones and Diegel one up at Agua Caliente.

Feminine Foes Of Prohibition Meet

Washington, Apr. 15—(AP)—Feminine anti-prohibitionists met in executive session today, prepared to flay the eighteenth amendment.

Their hopes for the future were bolstered by word from Matthew Woll, a Vice-President of the American Federation of Labor, that workingmen were organizing to "thwart the persistent and fanatic attempt to force prohibition on a free and unwilling people."

Woll told the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform yesterday that the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act have not and cannot stop the use of liquor.

He described prohibition as the "greatest experiment in hypocrisy known to history."

YOUNG THOMPSON WON TITLE BACK TUESDAY NIGHT

He Scored Technical K. O. Over Freeman In Twelfth Round

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cleveland, Apr. 15—(AP)—Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Calif., Negro youth, is back on the throne today as welterweight champion of the world.

Thompson regained the title he lost to Tommy Freeman six months ago by scoring a technical knockout over the titleholder in the twelfth round of their scheduled 15-round encounter in Cleveland's public auditorium last night. Freeman, with his left eye swollen shut, was unable to respond when the bell clanged for the start of the twelfth round. The eye started to swell in the tenth and by the end of the eleventh it was tightly closed. He protested that he was unable to see and surrendered to the California Negro on the advice of a physician.

By his victory, Thompson exploded the popular belief that they they never come back. His performance in winning back the title he lost takes rank with the achievements of the late Stanley Ketchel and Pete Herman, who won back their championships after losing them. Ketchel knocked out Billy Papke back in 1908 in 12 rounds after Papke two months previously had stopped him in the eleventh round of their mid-dewight engagement. Herman retrieved his bantamweight title from Johnny Buff after losing it to him.

But Disappointing
"Now boys' ain't that something," grinned Thompson as he sat in his dressing room after the fight.

"I got my championship back. I never should have lost it, but I'm sorry I won it the way I did. I would have liked to have knocked him out."

For a championship fight the battle was highly disappointing to a crowd of 9,000 spectators who paid $46,670 to witness it. It was dull and so uninteresting at times that the spectators yelled and booed, demanding action. The contest lacked the thrills usually expected of a championship battle principally because Thompson fought cautiously and Freeman waged a boring attack that was none too flashy. The crowd began to express its disapproval as early as the ninth round and kept yelling until the entirely unexpected finish.

Freeman was heart broken over his loss, but explained for him to continue as he could not see to fairness to the beaten champion, he wanted to continue, but quit on the advice of his handlers.

Thompson failed to reveal the flashing performances that enabled him to knock out Joe Dundee and batter Jimmy McLarnin to defeat. He was perhaps too cautious because he wanted to save his damaged hand for a knockout smash if the opportunity had presented itself.

Building Bought By Uncle Sam Is Burned

Berlin, Apr. 15—(AP)—The famous Bluecher palace on Pariserplatz which had been purchased by the American government for an embassy building here, was badly damaged by fire before dawn today.

The whole right wing of the three-story building was ablaze before the arrival of firemen, who, despairing of saving the palace, concentrated their efforts on preventing spread of the blaze to nearby buildings. Almost every piece of apparatus in the city was called out.

Origin of the fire was not determined. There were no known casualties but the offices of the United States commercial attache, the only department of the embassy which had been moved to the building, were destroyed.

Title to the building was still in its former owner's hand so the United States government, which is reputed to have paid $7,500,000 for it, presumably escaped serious loss. The castle was built by the Prussian government as a gift to General Bleucher, who turned the tide of battle at Waterloo.

SENIORS COPPED CLASS STRUGGLE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Some Good Track Talent Displayed By Juniors And Sophomores

(By ROBERT KENNEDY)

Monday afternoon at four o'clock the inter-class meet started the first real track competition in Dixon high school this year. The seniors won the meet with a score of 87 points. It was only natural that the seniors should win as they have the old-timers to the track; but some real ability was shown by the sophomores and juniors. The juniors were only 3 1/2 points ahead of the sophomores and when the broad jump is run tonight they will have a hard time to keep their lead. While the freshmen did not make much as a team there are three men who promise to develop into good track men in a few years.

The best distance with weights were made by Wolford throwing the 12-pound shot 39 feet 4 inches; and Ogan throwing the javelin 144 feet 7 inches. Ogan made a mark of 9 feet 6 inches on the pole vault and Strong easily made 5 feet 4 inches on the high jump to take first honors.

In the dashes the best time was made by the following: 440 yard dash, Kennedy 56 seconds; 880 yard run, Weinman 2:17; and in the mile run Weinman made it in 5:17 and breastst the tape fifteen yards ahead of his nearest rival. Plozman made the high hurdles in 18.5 and the low hurdles in 29.4.

The last event of the meet was the half mile relay, four men on each team. The seniors with Abbott, Kennedy, Wolford and Plozman won it easily, in 1:41.3.

The results of the meet are as follows:

Seniors ..... 87
Juniors ..... 84
Sophomores ..... 54 1/2
Freshmen ..... 6 1/2

Ogan was high point man of the meet with 22 points for the juniors, MacReynolds was second with 17 points for the sophomores. The next best was Plozman with 13 1/2 and Wolford with 12 1/2 points.

Inter-class track meet, April 13-14:
100-yard dash—1st, McReynolds (2); 2nd, Plozman (4); 3rd, Talty (3); 4th, Ogan (3); 5th, Wolford (4). Time—11:4 seconds.

Discus—C. Daniels 1st (2); R. Daniels 2nd (3); Ogan 3rd (3); Wolford 4th (4); Gehant 5th (3). Distance 87 feet 2 inches.

880-yard run—Weinman 1st (4); Swigley 2nd (4); Williams 3rd (2); Hasselburg 4th (4); Padgett 5th (1). Time 2:17.

220-yard dash—Abbott 1st (4); McReynolds 2nd (2); Kennedy 3rd (4); Ogan 4th (3); Talty 5th (3). Time 25.5.

High jump—Strong 1st (2); Worley 2nd (4); Kennedy (4) and Weinman (4) (3rd); Abbott 5th (4). Height—five feet four inches.

Mile run—Weinman 1st (4); Hasselburg 2nd (4); Williams 3rd (2); Swigley 4th (4); Padgett 5th (1). Time 5:17.

Javelin—Ogan 1st (3); C. Daniels 2nd (2); R. Daniels 3rd (3); Wolford 4th (4); Fordham 5th (2). Distance 144 feet 5 inches.

Low hurdle—Plozman 1st (4); Ed Flanningam 2nd (3); Fordham (3rd); Frye 4th (2); Schildberg 5th (3). Time 29.4 seconds.

5-mile relay—Seniors 1st; Sophomores 2nd; Juniors 3rd; Freshmen 4th. Time 1:41.3.

1st place—1 point.
2nd place—4 points.
3rd place—3 points.
4th place—2 points.
5th place—1 point.

The numbers in parenthesis in the scores refer to the class: (1) freshman; (2) sophomore; (3) junior and (4) senior.

Friday, DeKalb is coming to Dixon for our first dual meet. It will start at four o'clock.

Tented Legation in Managua

Probably the most unusual American legation in all the world is that of United States Minister Matthew E. Hanna, at Managua, Nicaragua. He is pictured here outside the tent which has temporarily supplanted the legation building that was destroyed in the recent earthquake. From this makeshift headquarters, Minister Hanna is directing relief activities in the stricken city.

Baseball Gossip

By HUGH S. FULLERTON (Associated Press Sports Writer)

With all the fanfare that usually accompanies the start of a new baseball year, the major leagues have launched what promises to be a highly successful season.

The size of the opening day crowds, which filled eight ball parks with nearly 250,000 fans, and the quality of the first game performances combined to promise great things for future days between now and September. All around the two circuits, the teams that have been picked to finish in the first division the predictions while the others showed that they may become contenders. A number of the recruits, particularly on the weaker teams, shone in the opening games.

In no case was the margin of victory more than four runs while one game which brought together two of the prospective pennant contenders was carried into extra innings. The Philadelphia Athletics, the world champions, defeated the Washington Senators, who finished second to the A's in the American League last year, 5 to 3 in an eleven-inning battle. The A's tied the count in the ninth just about the time President Hoover left the scene, then bunched hits off Al Crowder in the eleventh to win. For the most part the game was a mound duel between Duke Wadberg of Philadelphia and Lloyd Brown of Washington.

Three other good pitching performances turned up in the American League. Before a crowd of 70,000, Charley Ruffing of the New York Yankees held the Boston Red Sox in check to gain a 6 to 3 victory. Babe Ruth added to the festivities by hitting his first home run of the new season while Winsett made a pinch homer for Boston. Wesley Ferrel started out to beat last year's mark of 25 victories for Cleveland as his mates hit well behind him to beat the Chicago White Sox 5 to 4. Walter Stewart of St. Louis limited the rebuilt Tigers to six hits while the Browns doubled that number to win 7-3.

Charley Root, ace of the Chicago Cubs, turned in the National League's best hurling performance as he allowed the Pittsburgh Pirates only four blows while gaining a 6 to 2 triumph. A homer by Gabby Hartnett also helped entertain the 45,000 fans of the National League's biggest crowd.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals, now just one of the teams battling for the flag, found trouble with Larry Benton's pitching in the early innings but came with a rush at the finish and defeated Cincinnati 7 to 2. The New York Giants and Philadelphia quickly found the range of the right field wall at Baker Bowl, Philadelphia, and slammed out four homers, three in that direction. Chuck Klein, Phillies—Hit pair of homers in opening game against Giants.

John Pius Quinn started his 29th year as a professional pitcher on the mound for Brooklyn but failed to foil the Boston Braves batters after the first few innings. He was removed in the seventh but the damage was done and Boston won by a 7-4 count. Boston's starter, Tom Zachary, was driven to cover in the first inning.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Babe Ruth, Yankees—Opened 1931 season with home in seventh inning against Red Sox.

Charley Root, Cubs—Held Pirates to four hits and fanned five as Cubs won, 6-2.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Hit pair of homers in opening game against Giants.

West Ferrell, Indians—Scattered White Sox's eight hits, drove in two runs with pair of singles and scored twice himself.

Jimmy Fox, Athletics—His single in 11th scored winning run against Senators.

Walter Stewart, Browns—Beat Tigers, 7-3 on six-hit pitching performance and clouted triple and two singles.

Even up to the late 1860's steel plates for ships, bridges and boilers were virtually unknown.

To Try New Method In Dangerous Sport

Des Moines, Apr. 15—(AP)—A new method of handling contestants in the shot put, hammer, discus and javelin throw will be tried at the Drake Relays April 24 and 25 upon the suggestion of Harry S. Gill, University of Illinois track coach.

Gill studied the methods of the 1928 Olympic games and found that competition in these events entailed a certain amount of danger to contestants and spectators alike and that they were confusing to spectators.

Under the plan to be followed the contestants will take all their practice throws at a field outside the stadium.

The contestants will compete in groups of six so that they will not be forced to wait so long between throws. All of the six in the group will take one throw and then their efforts will be measured.

The field of competition will be well marked with large numbers indicating distances. No one will be permitted on the field except contestants and officials. The javelin thrown by each contestant will remain where it sticks until all have thrown.

Breach Between Dempseys Widens

Hollywood, Calif., April 15—(AP)—The breach between Jack Dempsey and his actress wife, Estelle Taylor, widened a little today as Miss Taylor announced, with slight reservations, that she had decided to file a divorce suit here "very soon."

By way of reservation, the actress intimated that a reconciliation was not an impossibility and that she might yet exercise her prerogative of changing her mind.

Miss Taylor, who is now interested in an operatic career, made the announcement after the former world's heavyweight boxing champion had issued a statement from Reno that he was there to establish residence for the purpose of divorce, at her request.

One shred of hope for reconciliation rested in an unconfirmed report that Dempsey was returning to Hollywood immediately. Miss Taylor said her home would be open to him, as always. She said she had not heard from him, directly or indirectly.

Canadian Hockey Team Wins Trophy

Montreal, Apr. 15—(AP)—For the fifth time in its long and varied history as emblem of hockey supremacy, the Stanley Cup has come into the possession of Les Canadiens of Montreal. The flying Frenchmen, who last year brought the world's championship trophy back from the United States, defeated the Chicago Blackhawks 2 to 0 in the fifth and final game of their championship series.

The colorful Canadiens first won the cup in 1892. It was presented as an amateur trophy by Lord Stanley of Preston. This was long before the National Hockey League was formed in 1916. They captured it again in 1919 and in 1924 before last year's triumph.

Last night they completed one of the greatest comebacks that even such a famed team of "money players" has ever made to win the title for the fifth time. Outmanned and often outplayed all through the final series, the Habitués rose to the

Her Marriage Lasted 33 Days

The romance of Betty Compton, above, Broadway stage star, and Edward D. Dowling, film dialogue director, came to a quick end in the divorce court at Cuernavaca, Mexico. Married only 33 days, the comedy dancer obtained a decree on grounds of cruelty, personal violence and failure to provide maintenance. They were married in New York Feb. 16.

Priest Is Licensed Transport Pilot

When Father George H. Woodley, a secular Catholic priest, returns to Alaska to fly his own plane in connection with parish work, he will be qualified as a full-fledged aviator. For as you see him here, left, he had just successfully passed a test for a transport pilot's license at Roosevelt Field, Long Island. Shown congratulating him is Inspector Oren P. Harwood of the Department of Commerce. Father Woodley is the first priest to achieve this aeronautical ranking.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSEY McBRIDE, 10-year-old New York typist, marries Jim Wallace the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANNE TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been jilted by ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, and Wallace's fiancée had broken their engagement to marry a wealthier man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives, particularly AUNT ELLEN, who has kept house for him, are hostile to Gypsy. They snub her. Aunt Ellen moves to a cottage of her own. MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancée, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and news comes that Brock Phillips has been killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about her financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees that the situation and worries. He tries to talk to Jim but cannot.

Now Gypsy is aware of the situation and worries. She tries to talk to Jim but cannot. She asks him to meet her at a tea room. He comes and they drive away in his roadster.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

THE girl's shoulder touched Jim's. She was sitting low in the roadster, leaning back, chin raised to the wind. The faint odor of perfume reached his nostrils. He stole a glance at the pale, clear-cut profile. Marcia's lips were like a flash of crimson. He could just see the gold of her hair beneath the hat brim.

"Where are we going?" Marcia asked without glancing up.

"Nowhere. Marcia, we can't go on like this. You shouldn't have telephoned me this afternoon and I ought not to have left the office. Don't you see it's dangerous?"

"Dangerous? Perhaps Marcia Phillips was pleased with the word. She did not speak for several moments. Then she said, "All right. You'd better turn around and take me back."

Jim drove as though he had not heard. "It isn't just today I'm talking about," he said. "We've been seeing too much of each other, Marcia. You know Forest City as well as I do. Someone will say something one of these days and then the whole town will start. You know what they'll say. I'd be a fine one to let you in for a lot of malicious gossip."

"Are you thinking of me, Jim?" "I'm thinking of all of us. You and Gypsy." The name slipped from him unconsciously and he looked slightly embarrassed. "Oh, you know yourself it's the right thing!" he wound up weakly.

"It's mostly because of her, isn't it?" Marcia asked slowly. "Do you think she suspects anything?" "That's not the point, Marcia. It's the wrong look of the thing—where we're drifting!"

"But if she doesn't know she can't be hurt, can she?" Marcia persisted.

"No one must be hurt!" he said firmly. "Why, this sort of thing can lead anywhere. I see it in court every day. Tragedies. Misunderstandings. It's playing with fire. We can't do it, Marcia."

The girl's face was averted. They had turned from the broad, state highway into an unimproved road. On either side stretched farm land with here and there a weather-beaten house. The dwellers in those homes were not prosperous. Fences sagged drunkenly and chickens fed with shrill squawks at the approach of the roadster.

Marcia looked at the surroundings with obvious distaste. "I suppose you're right," she said after a pause. "I'll have to go away."

"But I don't want you to do that. There's no need for it!"

The girl turned then and looked at him. She smiled but there was infinite pathos behind that smile. "Oh, my dear!" she said. "It's the only way. I'll go away and you can forget me. That will be best."

"I'll never forget you, Marcia. You know that."

THEY rode in silence for several minutes. The frown remained between Jim Wallace's eyes. Presently the girl said, "Well, it's settled. I'm going. I don't know where but I'm going away. Do just this one thing for me, Jim! Let's drive to the Ledges. We're nearly half way there, anyhow. I want this last afternoon together to be something to remember."

Wallace glanced at the sky. The sun had been hidden from view all afternoon. In the west the clouds were darkening.

"Guess we can make it," he said. "I don't like the look of those clouds though."

"The Ledges was the name given to an ancient landmark five miles west of Forest City. Jackson Creek, winding its circuitous pathway, struggled through a region of rolling hillsides where layers of sandstone projected, occasionally in great slabs. The sandstone had never been used commercially. In fall the brownish stone surface blended with the riotous scarlet and gold of sumach and oak leaves and underbrush of a dozen varieties. In spring the Ledges were visited every Sunday by scores of "hikers," family picnic parties and young men and women carrying cameras and forever taking snapshots.

There was sentimental interest attached to the Ledges too. There was a flat rock high on the one hillside which rose taller than the others and overlooked an abrupt drop. You could faintly see the white tower of Forest City's highest building from this height. On this rock could be traced numerous initials carved in pairs. Sometimes the letters were surrounded by the crude outline of a heart. Here and there beside such an inscription as "Sally and Bob" or "Ester and John" there would be the day of the month and year. Neatly carved and framed in a square at the northeast corner of the rock were the letters "M. L." and "J. W." which Jim had cut there on a high school picnic before ever he had had the courage to ask Marcia for a "date."

A private road led from the main highway across a field, the nearest approach to the Ledges. Jim swung the car into this lane, driving carefully. The road ended 50 yards from the hillside.

"Want to get out?" he asked.

Marcia nodded. They walked over to the edge of the bluff and surveyed the distance.

Jackson Creek at the base of the hill was a narrow, wavering stream. Beyond the countryside was a sweep of greens shading from dark red or yellow of a barn or farm house stood out against this background. The neat fenced fields of corn seemed to make a pattern of great squares.

Marcia sank to the rock. "Sit down, Jim," she said.

He dropped beside her, took out his cigarette case and offered it to the girl. She declined. Jim took a lighter from his pocket, applied the flame to his own cigarette and leaned back, smoking intently.

THE situation was hardly romantic. For an instant Marcia eyed the young man disapprovingly, then she said, drawing nearer: "Like old times, isn't it? Do you remember the last time we were here?"

Jim nodded. "Haven't been here since."

"You liked me then. You didn't want to send me away."

"I don't want to send you away now. Stay here! There's no reason for you to leave. If anyone has to go I can be the one to do it."

Marcia's fingers stole over his "Please don't be cross, Jim," she coaxed, "when I'm only trying to do what you want me to. I've tried so hard, dear! I knew it was wrong to telephone this afternoon but I hadn't seen you for a whole week and the house was full of those women talking and sewing and making so much noise. I had to get away from it. And I didn't think there'd be any harm in seeing you for just a few minutes—I!"

"But it's just as I've told you," Jim repeated. "We mustn't go on with this sort of thing! No matter how harmless it seems it's wrong."

Marcia was quiet. Presently she raised eyes that were wistful, adoring. "Tell me,"—her voice was a whisper—"if it weren't for hurting her—would you care the same way? Would you, Jim?"

Jim snuffed out his cigarette. He was not looking at the girl. "I'll always be fond of you," he told her. "I haven't the right to be anything else."

"I'll never forget that," she told him solemnly. "It's going to help a lot. Suddenly she buried her head against his shoulder, her arms clung to him. "Oh, Jim," the girl cried, "I love you. I love you so much!"

His arms were around her. Her warm nearness was a challenge. He held her closely. Then Marcia lifted her head and Jim's lips crushed hers in a long kiss.

They looked at each other, then Jim's face was drained of color. "We'd better go back," he said.

He helped the girl to her feet and they started back toward the roadster. Several times Marcia glanced at him, puzzled. She could not read the expression on his face.

When they were settled in the car she asked him cautiously, "Jim—are you sorry?"

"I'm a fool!" he told her harshly. It was the only answer she received.

All the way to the city he drove recklessly. It was fortunate there was little travel. The sun, hidden all day, suddenly emerged from the clouds and shone low in the west. It was nearly six when he let Marcia out at the cottage.

"Good night," she said, smiling and extending her hand.

"Good night, Marcia."

It did not occur to Jim that though it had been a farewell drive not once had the words "goodbye" been said.

That evening he seemed to make an effort to be considerate of Gypsy. He praised the dinner and later suggested a trip down town to see the new Fairbanks picture.

Gypsy was grateful. It had been a day in which things had gone wrong.

SHE was in the kitchen next morning when the telephone rang. Matilda was mixing pastry dough. "I'll go," Gypsy said and hurried into the hall. It was Jim.

"That you, Gypsy?" he asked. "Say how would it be if I asked Harrison to come to dinner tomorrow evening? I've just found out he's leaving town next week for quite a long stay. We've never had him out, you know. Do you suppose you could manage it?"

"Why, of course. I'd love to have him come."

"All right. I'll fix it up for tomorrow evening then. It's the only chance because he has a lot of other engagements. What time shall I say? Six-thirty?"

She told him 6:30 would be right. Swinging around and setting down the telephone, Gypsy began to plan a campaign of activity. She was anxious that the dinner for Mr. Harrison should be just right. Gypsy had the greatest admiration and respect for the aged lawyer. She had seen him occasionally since the first day she had gone to Jim's office and each time her original impression had been strengthened. She had, furthermore, a feeling that Harrison was her friend.

The whole house must be spotless. There was the menu to plan. Gypsy decided to have the dinner served on the porch if the day was warm. She telephoned to Cora and arranged to have the weekly cleaning done next day. Then there was a session with Matilda, a hasty survey of food supplies, a trip to the market.

When she came in from the trip down town Gypsy took off her hat and surveyed herself in the hall mirror. It occurred to her she needed a shampoo. She went to the telephone and arranged for an appointment at Louise's.

"I'll have a shampoo," Gypsy told herself, "and a finger wave and manicure. I'll wear the printed chiffon tomorrow and I want to look my best." She hurried through the rest of her list of tasks to be on time for the appointment at the beauty parlor.

Gypsy arrived promptly. There was a wait of several minutes and then a tall girl with a mass of jet black hair led her to a curtained booth. Louise's shop was the most expensive in Forest City. The walls and curtains were green and the furnishings green and ivory. Forest City's society always had its hair done at Louise's.

The tall girl worked dextrously with soap and water and rinsing sprays. She rubbed Gypsy's head with pungent lotions. Then she pressed the wet hair into waves, and pinned them in place. Finally she bound the girl's head with a thin cap.

"Now come this way," She directed Gypsy to a vacant booth and adjusted the hair dryer. For half an hour the girl sat before the scorching electric heat before the operator reappeared and snapped off the current.

The droning buzz of the hair dryer died. From beyond the curtained wall of the next booth a woman's voice rose.

"But have you heard about Jim Wallace?" the voice was saying. "He's going to leave his wife!"

He Was Astonished At Quick Results

Mr. Ralph Reed, Galesburg, Ill.

"I have been troubled with constipation for a good many years which finally brought on a kidney ailment. I have taken medicine of all kinds and have gone to doctors and they told me I couldn't be cured. Then a friend told me about Para Pepsin. I expected it to act like all of the rest but the first bottle showed such good results I tried another. Now my constipation is gone and I do not have any more severe pains in my back."

PARA PEPSIN, the new laxative-tonic, is being introduced at the Schildberg's Pharmacy in Dixon, and is sold by all good druggists.—Adv.

In the Black and White Mode

The season's insistent theme song of contrast is crystallized in this smart black and white street costume. The black wool georgette skirt fits to a high waist line, with a white satin blouse, chicly double-breasted and fastened with black and white buttons. The piece de resistance of the costume is the bolero of white lapin, jauntily flaring and made with the new three-quarters sleeves that call for long gloves wrinkled down.

RACKETEERING IN FRANCE AND ENGLAND ALSO

The Doughty Knights Of Long Ago First
Worked Game

By WALLACE CARROLL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, April 15—(UP)—Beggars and bookmakers, tradesmen and tramps pay toll to petty racketeers in Britain today, but the "big boss" who can put racketeering in a good sound basis has not yet flashed his bullet-proof vest in Piccadilly.

From an historical point of view, racketeering is in a decadent stage in the kingdom of George V. Hundreds of years before "Big Jim" Colosimo organized the beer-runners south of Chicago's loop, racketeering was a noble profession in these islands and "muscling in" was a fatal social error.

Those days, a doughty knight would don his best steel shirt, station himself at the head of the bridge and demand toll of all who passed. Merchants, monks and women in distress paid. But the knight in turn paid tribute to the biggest racketeer of them all—the king of that day.

Old Racket Survives
The quaint old racket of paying toll survives, but in a very modest form. There are about 100 toll gates and bridges in England and Wales, some of them bringing in only $75,000 a year.

At Connel in Scotland, a fee of $2.50 is charged for every automobile crossing the bridge. Cows cross at the rate of 25 cents. Sheep must be led over one at a time and the attendant must pay eight cents for himself each time.

In the Isle of Ely, Queen Mary herself paid toll last year.

But even conservative England has found some new racketeers. Bookmakers are terrorized by race-track gangsters, who force them to pay exorbitant fees before they can accept bets. Even the chalk with which the "bookies" mark up their betting odds must be purchased.

Race Tracks Intimidated
Intimidation at race-tracks still persists, although we have stamped out much of it in the last two years.

An official of Scotland Yard said: "In the north of England it is probably worse than around London. I don't know what racketeering means, but maybe that's what it is."

Gangsters are active in several Scottish cities. In Glasgow they have forced theatre owners to contribute to their coffers, just as Al Capone's Laundrymen's Association has wrung "contributions" from the laundry proprietors of Chicago. If the theatre owners refuse to "come across," their performances are spoiled by stink bombs and rowdiness.

Musicians who play for their living on the streets of London, have organized a petty racket. They have divided the city into districts, and "muscling in" is not tolerated.

Even the royal family is involved in something approaching a racket—although it is almost less majestic to say so. Any merchant, who wishes to have his shop recognized as one of the best must have the royal coat of arms over his door.

Hundreds of merchants pay thousands of dollars to the crown each year for the right to display the arms of the King, the Queen or the Prince of Wales.

Partly Identify Victim Of "Ride"
Valparaiso, Ind., April 14—(UP)—Fingerprints served today to partly identify the body of an unidentified man believed to have been taken "for a ride" Sunday night, as that to Sam Vubi of Chicago.

The fingerprints were checked with the Chicago police department after the body, bearing five bullet wounds in the head, was found near a highway 14 miles east of Gary. The Chicago records showed the fingerprints were identical with those of Vubi, arrested in 1923 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Pending an inquest and further investigation, the body was held in the morgue here.

Detroit, April 14—(AP)—The 20,000,000th Ford automobile, with Henry Ford at the wheel was driven to Mr. Ford's estate today and parked beside the first one, which was made in 1893.

Mr. Ford took the wheel as the car left the assembly line. Edsel Ford and two officials of the Ford Motor Company rode with him.

The 20,000,000th car will be taken for a tour of the country and then will be placed in the Ford museum.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unpleasant pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous gripping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c 50c and 60c. All druggists.

Lady Richmond Brown, right, can laugh at the doctors who 10 years ago forbade her lawn tennis courts and swimming pools as too strenuous. Today she is a distinguished archaeologist and explorer and spends her time in jungles of Panama and the tropics, hunting and studying ruins or fishing for giant swordfish and sharks that infest the Southern Seas. The noted Englishwoman is shown at the left, above, with a 25-foot swordfish she hooked in Panama Bay.

THE STORY OF NICK LONGWORTH

Washington Press Correspondent, Friend of Deceased Speaker, Writes Intimately of His Life

By HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, Apr. 15—(UP)—Nicholas Longworth's political crisis came in the years 1910-14. He lived in a political turmoil which nearly retired him permanently from public life. Only the strong Republican organization in which he had worked for years saved him.

Regarded by many as a fop, he was not widely liked in the rough and ready House. He had the handicap of being son-in-law of Theodore Roosevelt. Recognizing this, in later years Longworth helped organize a son-in-law club, with other notable men who married into more notable public families and he expressed sympathy for W. G. McAdoo following the Wilson White House marriage of a later day.

Longworth's allegiances pulled in diverse directions and the party to which he had maintained firm allegiance seemed on the verge of disintegrating. One of his active leaders, President Taft, split with his father-in-law. Taft and another leader, Speaker Cannon, were hardly on speaking terms. Taft fought with the Republican Senate chieftains, too. But Longworth never wavered. He stayed a regular Republican even through the Bull Moose split, which cost him his seat in the House for two years.

He maintained his equilibrium while Alice Longworth was publicly attacked for smoking cigarettes. She continued to smoke.

Away from the Capitol halls, however, there was harum-scarum play in which "Nick and Alice" were leaders. Military Aide Archie Butts records that one night after leaving the White House he stopped at the Longworths to find Alice reading the Song of Solomon to a select audience. Major Butts said that in retaliation for his roughness the party later tried to enter his home to disarrange his furniture, whereupon he dumped ice water on their heads from an upstairs window. Alice fired back verse, ridiculing him mercilessly as a White House slave.

After the 1922 debacle, Longworth returned to Cincinnati where he always maintained a residence at the family home "Rookwood" and mended his political fences in earnest.

In two years the pendulum swung, and Longworth was elected to the Sixty-fourth Congress. Under the seniority rule, however, he had lost all the high standing in committee assignments won by his previous decade of congressional service.

He started in at the bottom to build up his power to a higher point than before. The handicap of his father-in-law's power was receding. Longworth was 46. His knowledge of parliamentary law, his interest in tax and tariff matters, his energy and resourcefulness, made him a valuable member of the minority party. The Democratic majority was moving rapidly on tariff and banking reforms, and there was little glory and much work in the job of opposing Woodrow Wilson.

Europe was embroiled in war and the United States was excited over it. Longworth adopted Roosevelt's big-navy and preparedness policies and advocated them in Congress and elsewhere while the still popular Roosevelt was shouting the same ideas from newspaper pages daily. On top of the heap, Wilson speaking for peace prevailed until the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine.

Longworth often recalled the 1902 Venezuela incident when Roosevelt told the German Ambassador he would send Admiral Dewey down with the fleet if Germany, with a battleship already off Caracas, refused to arbitrate its claims there, had Roosevelt not acted Longworth said after the World War, "Germany would in all probability have established a naval base close to the site of the Panama Canal."

"I remember once," Longworth said of the pre-war period, "I voted for four battleships when a then-distinguished Democratic leader urged eloquently we should have no navy at all, because New York harbor could be defended by rowboats."

"In my advocacy of preparedness which to me means the equipment and men necessary not only to protect our shores from invasion but also to protect American citizens in their lives and property wherever they may be, I have followed the lead of one of the greatest Americans, Theodore Roosevelt," he said.

He supported war measures, voted with regret for the declaration of war and criticized the way the Democrats ran it.

The war ended and Roosevelt died. The Republicans gained control of the House in 1918 and Longworth had power. In 1921 Harding, from Ohio, went to the White House and Longworth mounted higher. The Republican chieftains of his early days were getting old and he came into his own.

AMUSEMENTS

FAIRBANKS' METHODS ATTRACT STAR GUESTS

News of the swift modern comedy and new type of direction in the latest Douglas Fairbanks' picture for United Artists, "Reaching for the Moon," with Bebe Daniels, attracted the interest of the biggest stars in Hollywood during the filming.

Charles Chaplin visited the sets one day and was enthusiastic. He rehearsed Fairbanks in a comedy routine. The following day Harold Lloyd was a guest and expressed admiration for the advanced methods of picture making used by Fairbanks and his final session.

Dynamic ultra-modern backgrounds were created for the picture by William Cameron Menzies, supervising art director. The story action and dialogue are breezy and sophisticated. The costumes of the players anticipate the styles of 1932. The picture comes to the Moose

Mal: Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Miss Daniels plays opposite Fairbanks and in the cast are Edward Everett Horton, Jack Mulhall, June MacCloy, Helen Jerome Eddy, Claud A. Lister, Adrienne d'Ambrioucourt, Walter Walker and Emmett Corrigan.

Advise Postponing Mexico Auto Trip

Chicago Ill.—Motorists who were planning to drive to Mexico City this summer, in anticipation of the opening of the highway between Laredo, Texas, and the Mexican capital, are urged by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor Club to postpone their plans at least until fall.

"At the present time there is a gap of some distance in the highway north of Mexico City," the Motor Club explained. "This gap is in mountainous country. Thousands of men have been at work for months blasting the right of way through this area. While the ends of the highway may be connected sometime next month, the road will require a vast amount of grading and bridge building before it can be traveled with any degree of ease. Only a motorist with the soul of a pioneer, and with unlimited time at his disposal, could hope to drive over it."

The rainy season in this section of Mexico begins in June and lasts through September. Many sections of the highway will become absolutely impassable during this period. It appears now that October is the earliest month in which to expect the highway to be in travelable condition.

The club based its statements on a report received from John H. Yeaman, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce, Mexico City, who traveled recently by horse and automobile, with the co-operation of the Mexican government, over the route of the highway from the Mexican capital to Laredo.
